Dear Colleague:

With the expansion of Mongolia's contacts with the rest of the world, the world of scholarship on Mongolian and Mongolian peoples worldwide has become wider and broader than ever. New fields are opening up regularly and new communities of collaborative scholars are opening up. This situation offers an opportunity for those working in fields related to the Mongolian lands and peoples to find fruitful new areas of cooperation and mutual academic enrichment.

To facilitate this type of exchange, in 2004 The Mongolia Society established a directory of scholars with an active interest in any field related to Mongolia and the Mongols. Our aim has always been to build a listing of scholars currently working on any aspect of the Mongolian lands and peoples, both to facilitate linkages between scholars who currently may not be aware of each other's work and interests, and to identify areas that perhaps may not be receiving the attention they deserve.

Please go to The Mongolia Society website (www.mongoliasociety.org) and view what has been posted in our Mongolists Directory (<http://mongoliasociety.org/mongolists/>). We hope that you will take the time to help us and the world of scholars interested in Mongolian studies by filling out the following questionnaire, and by passing copies on to any colleague you may be aware of with an active interest in any field related to Mongolia.

Please direct all questions, updates/corrections on any entry, and suggestions to monsoc@indiana.edu and/or kevilsiz@asu.edu Thank you for your time and attention!

Yours Truly,

Dr. Alicia J. Campi
President

P.S. There are other listings of scholars involved in "Central Eurasian Studies" or "Central Asian Studies" with much valuable information. Our listing is the first database of scholars involved in Mongolian studies that is both a comprehensive and complete listing of those interested in Mongolian studies. We hope that you will be able to help us.
