Occasional Papers, Number Twenty-four (Winter, 2002) Robert W. Reid. A Brief Political and Military Chronology of the Mediaeval Mongols, from the Birth of Chinggis Qan to the Death of Qubilai Qaghan. A detailed chronology of the Mongol conquests. Robert Reid accurately summarizes the current knowledge about their campaigns, invasions, and civil wars from Chinggis to Qubilai and from Vietnam to Vienna. This is a must-have reference work for any student of the Mongol world empire. 108 pages. ISBN 910980-64-0 $20.00

Occasional Papers, Number Twenty-five (2005) Sh. Nadirov. Tsedenbal and the Events of August 1984. Translated from the Russian by Baasan Ragchaa. "The unexpected change in the highest leadership of Mongolia in August 1984 still remains a mystery for many. According to official statements, Yumjaagiin Tsedenbal was relieved from his party and state posts "considering the poor condition of his health, and by his personal agreement." At the same time, certain circles of Mongolian society maintained a very firm and established opinion that his health was in good condition and that there were no serious grounds for his resignation. What then actually happened? Did Tsedenbal resign because of his poor health by his own will or was he removed against his will?... From

Tsedenbal and the Events of August 1984. 123 pages. ISBN 0-910980-65-9 $30.00

Occasional Papers, Number Twenty-Six (2007) Johan Elverskog. The Pearl Rosary: Mongol Historiography in the Early Nineteenth-Century Ordos. In this work Elverskog offers not only the first translation of the 1835 Subud Erike but also situates it within Mongol historiography of the Manchu period. In particular, he uses the work to challenge the conventional view of the imagined decline of Qing-period Mongol historical writing, especially the notion that it solely became a reflection of the state power. Instead, Elverskog shows how Mongol historians in nineteenth-century Ordos were maintaining their own vibrant and dynamic tradition. 196 pages. ISBN 978-0-910980-66-1 $30.00

Occasional Papers, Number Twenty-Seven (2013) John C. Street. On Quotation in Middle Mongolian: The verb ke(m)e- 'to say.' A study of the various uses of the quotative verb kee- (written keme- in the Uighur-based script) in all reliable texts of Middle Mongolian, with special emphasis on quoted sentences in the Secret History. Topics covered include direct quotation, referential and indirect quotation, and uses of the passive ke(m)e-gde-. An index is included of some 450 passages cited or mentioned. 96 pages. ISBN 978-0-910980-67-8 $28.00
